DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-13, drawn to circuit testing equipment that has at least one first integrated circuit capable of boundary-scan and at least one second integrated circuit not capable of boundary-scan, wherein input files comprising a boundary scan description language file, netlist, connections list, and test script are provided to cause pins of the first circuit to be driven in order to test the second circuit, classified in class 714, subclass 727.
- II. Claims 14-22, drawn to a method of testing an integrated circuit board having a boundary scan test port, wherein a boundary scan description language file, netlist, connections list, and test script are processed by a computer to send boundary scan test port signals to selected pins of the integrated circuit, classified in class 714, subclass 741.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions Group I and Group II are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different designs, modes of operation, and effects (MPEP § 802.01 and § 806.06). In the instant case, the different inventions have different modes of operation and thus are not capable of use together. Invention Group I is directed to testing a second IC by driving signals on a first IC that is connected to the second IC. On the other hand, invention Group II is directed to testing an integrated circuit by providing boundary scan test port signals directly to selected pins of the integrated circuit. Because invention Group II does not require a first IC to drive the signals to the pins of a second IC under test, the two inventions have different modes of operation that are not capable of use together.

Because these inventions are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art in view of their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and the inventions require a different field of search (see MPEP § 808.02), restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

A telephone call was made to Stefan Stein on 5/3/2006 to request an oral election to the above restriction requirement, but did not result in an election being made.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention or species may be made with or without traverse. To reserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the inventions or species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the inventions or species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C.103(a) of the other invention.
